

M.A. Psychology

- a) To acquaint the students with the processes involved in sensation and perception
- b) To develop insight into one's own and others' behaviour and underlying mental processes.
- c) To enrich students' understanding of major concepts, theoretical perspectives, and empirical findings in cognitive psychology.
- d) To acquaint them with the characteristics of standardized tests.
- e) To familiarize the students with psychometric theory and principles of test construction.
- f) To acquaint the students and make them understand the different statistical methods with their uses and interpretations
- g) To develop computational skills in students
- h) To enable them to analyze the data of practical and project work.
- i) The administration of psychological tests, interpretation of scores and report writing
- j) The evaluation procedures and evaluation of psychological tests
- k) Certain skills of psychological counselling on the basis of psychological test results.